

Maze generator

My extra program for this week is a maze generator. The program gives the user a UI when ran that allows them to choose the width and height of the maze in terms of nodes. The program then generates and displays a perfect maze (this means there is only one solution) using Kruskal's minimum spanning tree algorithm.

There is no testing for this program because I couldn't think of a way to test a program that relies on random generation.